CHARLES MAJOR

[Special to The Indianapolis News.]

ST. LOUIS, Mo., November 17.—Charles Major, of Shelbyville, Ind., author of the novel "When Knighthood Was in Flower," has been here at the Southern Hotel, this week, arranging with Julia Marlowe for the dramatic rights of his book. Miss Marlowe and Mr. Major have reached an agreement, by which Miss Marlowe secures the right to dramatize "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and it will be produced soon. Miss Marlowe declares the story will make a great play. Of the character, Mary Tudor (the heroine of the book), Miss Marlowe says: "It is the one character in my entire career that I have seen that I think is worthy to be classed with a Shakesperean repertoire."

"A good manner is a decoration that must be kept on always if it is to be worn with ease. Good manners are rare because good feeling is rare, for good manners are the outcome of good feeling. Manners are not the mere society show of politeness, but the inward kindly sympathy of which politeness is the natural outward manifestation; given these, grace and charm of manner come of themselves."—Sarah Grand.

INTRODUCTIONS

Indiscriminate introductions should not be tolerated.

No gentleman should ever be introduced to a lady without her permission.

No person should intrude himself or herself upon the notice of a person to whom a casual introduction has been made.

The gentleman should be presented to the lady; the younger woman to the elder. A gentleman may ask a mutual friend or an acquaintance for an introduction to a lady. In the ball room a chaperone may ask a young man to be presented to the young lady in her charge, but such an introduction is with the understanding that the young man will ask the young lady to dance, to walk with her, or talk through one dance.

It is considered more elegant not to shake hands at a first introduction, except in her own house a hostess should always extend her hand to a person presented by a friend.

At dinner parties the hostess should introduce to a lady the gentleman who is to take her to the dining room, except in the case of a guest of honor or some distinguished person. The English rule that "the roof is an introduction" ought to hold good in this country, so that visitors may converse without any other or formal introduction.

A lady always acknowledges an introduction or bows first.

Gentlemen with ladies should raise the hat if the lady recognizes a friend.

A casual introduction does not mean a future acquaintance.

A hostess should be particularly careful to introduce timid people, and make some remark which will start a conversation.

CALLING

Formality requires one call a year on every acquaintance, and the call should be made on the announced reception day. If this, for any reason, cannot be made personally, a card should be sent, but all acquaintances should be treated alike; do not call on some and not on others.

One reception a year, when all the "list" is invited, clears the calling score, but invitations for any special occasion, such as a dinner, wedding or luncheon, should be returned by a personal call within a fortnight.

A young woman should make at least one visit to those friends who are older than herself. An invitation to an older woman's house is a civility which should receive a prompt call.

A first call should be returned within a fortnight.

The older resident should make the first call.

Pronounced authority says: "There is no necessity of calling after a tea or general reception, if one has attended or has left or sent a card on that day."

THE CARDS

Visiting cards are of thin cardboard, engraved. The size and form change frequently, and the leading stationer should be consulted.

Husbands and wives have separate cards. Those for the husband are small, and those for the wife are larger; both are oblong.

A lady leaves her husband's card for the gentleman of the house, as well as one for the lady.

Never give your own card to the person on whom you are calling; leave it on the hall table, with those of the other members of your family, at the first call of the season. This assists the lady's memory when making out any list for the season.

Cards of all kinds, including the P. P. C., may be sent by post. Be sure the envelope is properly and correctly addressed, and to Indianapolis, not to "City." A card is yourself, and, sent in response to an invitation, means that it represents you, and that you will not be present. Nothing should be written on a card, except when leaving a card at a hotel the name of the person for whom it is intended should be written on the upper edge of the face of the card, to insure its proper delivery. Visitors in a city should send their cards with their address by post to any whom they desire to have call.

INVITATIONS

Plain and simple engraving and the fewest possible words are the best form for all invitations. Dinner invitations may be written by the hostess. Such invitations should be answered at once with an acceptance or regret. The hostess must know, in order that she may arrange her table. If illness should interfere with the keeping of a dinner engagement, send a note at once to the hostess, that she may fill the place. A dinner is the highest social compliment, and should be treated accordingly. Answer an invitation in the same person and style in which it is received, and address it to the person or persons who send it. A hostess should not have to ask for a reply to an invitation, but to insure one the simple line "The favor of an answer is requested" may be used.

For a ball, cotillion or dance, the word and the hour is sufficient.

Bachelors never give an "at home." They "request the pleasure of one's company" for a certain date.

Ladies use their visiting cards for any afternoon company.

A wedding invitation need not be answered, unless the card for the ceremony or breakfast is enclosed.

Invitations should not be sent to those in mourning for a month, and for a year they are simply compliments, as persons in mourning refrain from society for a year at least.

No separate card need be left for a guest on a reception day; simply one for the hostess.

NOTES

No lady should be too thoughtless or neglectful to write notes. A card will not take the place of a note.

The bride should send a note of thanks for every gift received. A note or personal visit should acknowledge any gift.

WEDDINGS

Invitations to weddings should be issued two weeks before the event, and after they are sent out, the bride to be is not seen in public. The cards include, beside the invitation, a card for the ceremony and the at home announcement. The latter may be on an additional card, or in the lower left-hand corner of the invitation. If there are to be reception days, these are announced on an extra card.

A display of gifts is left to the pleasure of the bride. A desirable form is to invite the most intimate friends informally to call and see them the afternoon before the wedding, and they are not visible at the wedding or reception.

A call or an invitation to the young couple during the season is all that is necessary after a large wedding. An invitation to a private ceremony and breakfast demands a call within a fortnight.

For wedding invitations from a distance, a card should be sent to show that the invitation has been received.

ENTHUSIASTIC

OVER "WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER" IS MISS JULIA MARLOWE.

Miss Marlowe spoke enthusiastically to a representative of the Enquirer, Cincinnati, recently, of Charles Major's novel. She said: "I hope to produce a dramatization of the book in a few weeks. The novel is most interesting, and the elements of popularity it contains can be imagined from the fact that, although it has only been out a few months, it has reached its fifth edition."

INDIANA SHORT STORIES

By Anna Nicholas of Indianapolis.

"An Idyl of the Wabash and Other Indiana Stories" is the title of a new book published by the Bowen-Merrill Company of this city. Indiana's writers have not only a local but a world-wide reputation and it seems that fresh laurels are constantly being added to her literary wreath of glory. We are justly proud of owning Charles Major, who was so modest as to assume the puzzling and unostentatious pseudonym of "Caskoden" in writing that charming and intensely interesting story which the literary world is still devouring. We have not yet had time to forget the fascinating personality of "Mary" whom we are suddenly delighted with a little volume of short stories, written by Miss Anna Nicholas, the well-known literary editor of the Indianapolis Journal. The inviting dress of the book we owe to the unique and effective design by Indiana's sweet singer, Evaleen Stein, who is developing the artistic talent as well as that of the poet.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

INDIANA AUTHOR'S STORY.

Miss Marlowe will Play "When Knighthood Was In Flower."

[Special to the Indianapolis News.]

St. Louis, Mo., November 17.—Charles Major, of Shelbyville, Ind., author of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," has been here at the Southern Hotel, this week, arranging with Julia Marlowe for the dramatic rights of his book. Miss Marlowe and Mr. Major have reached an agreement, by which Miss Marlowe secures the right to dramatize "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and it will be produced soon. Miss Marlowe declares the story will make a great play. Of the character, Mary Tudor, Miss Marlowe says: "It is the one character in my entire career that have seen that I think is worthy to be classed with a Shakespearean repertoire."

AN IDYL OF THE WABASH AND OTHER STORIES.

The quotation upon the title page of Anna Nicholas' half score of tales of humble thought and living is happily significant. Her stories are truly

"Made out o' truck 'at's jes' a-goin' to waste
'Cause smart folks thinks it's too Outrageous common,

but she has put so much of truth and fidelity to nature, so much of sympathy and understanding in them that they are by no means "outrageous common." The reader gleans, in passing, an inkling of how much religious faith and external observances mean to those deprived of social and intellectual privileges.—The Detroit Free Press.

JOHNNIE. By E. O. Laughlin.

The wonderfully simple yet wonderfully involved story of this wonderfully unremarkable boy is told with tender beauty, exquisite humor and dignified pathos. The temptation to quote at length from the book is great, but it must suffice to say that it is exceeding good, aye, even that it ought not to be missed. Perhaps the young reader will find it so presently true that he will lay aside for something more strange and foreign, but the reader from the world's rough hand has impressed the longing-born conviction that "the Lotus-land the poet sung, it is the Child-world while the heart beats young," this reader will not lay Johnnie down without thankfulness that it has been written; Published by The Bowen-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.—Clara E. Laughlin in The Interior.

PLAYING RULES

THE GAME.

The game to be played shall be the American Ten-Fra Game, and shall be played on regulation alleys, with regulation pins and balls.

THE ALLEY.

a. A regulation alley shall not be less than 41 inches, exceed 42 inches, in width; shall be 60 feet in length from center of head pin spot to the foul line, and shall have a 1 back of at least 15 feet. The pin spots shall be made distinct, shall not be larger than the base of pins and must be 12 inches apart from center to center.

b. The gutters shall be so constructed that a ball rolling in them cannot interfere with the pins standing on the alley.

c. The pit shall be at least 10 inches below the surface of the alley, and not less than $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet from alley to swinging cushion at the rear.

The side partition may be covered with one layer of leather not more than $\frac{1}{2}$ inch in thickness.

THE PIN.

A regulation pin shall be 15 inches in height, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter at the bottom, and 15 inches in circumference at the body or thickest part.

In case of accident to any pin in use, it shall be replaced by another as nearly uniform as possible.

THE BALL.

The ball shall not exceed 27 inches in circumference in any direction, but smaller balls may be used.

FOUL LINE AND FOUL BALLS.

In all games there shall be a line drawn or painted on the surface of the alleys and gutters, the center point of which shall be 60 feet from the center of the head pin spot. This shall be known as the foul line. A player, in delivering a ball, must not step on or over this line, nor allow any part of his body or clothing to touch on or beyond the line until after the ball has reached the pins. Any ball so delivered shall be deemed foul, and must be announced at once by the umpire. The player forfeits the ball and all pins made by such foul ball, and such pins, if any, shall be respotted before the next ball is rolled. Should any ball delivered leave the alley before reaching the pins, or any ball rebound from the back cushion, the pins, if any, made by such ball shall not count, but must be respotted. All such balls to count as balls rolled. Pins knocked down by pin or pins rebounding from side or back cushion, shall count as pins down. No lofting or throwing of balls upon the alley will be allowed. The balls must be rolled.

DEAD BALLS.

If any player roll on the wrong alley or out of turn, or is interfered with by spectators or any other bowler, or if any of the pins he is playing at be knocked down or disturbed in any way before his ball reaches them, or if any ball, after being fairly delivered, should come in contact with any obstacle on the alley before reaching the pins, the umpire shall declare such ball "dead," and allow the player to roll again after the pins have been placed as they were before such ball was rolled.

In tournament games specified alleys shall be used throughout the season.

Two alleys will be used for match games, the players of the contesting teams to roll successively, and but one frame at a time, and to change alleys each frame. No change in players shall be made after the first frame of a game has been played, except by consent of the opposing captain.

THE GAMES.

If the score at the end of the tenth frame be a tie, play shall continue on the same alley until a majority of points upon an equal number of frames shall be attained, which shall conclude the game.

Ten members from each club shall form a match team. In case of a club withdrawing from the League, all games played with such club shall be counted as games played.

FORFEITED GAMES.

Any club detected tampering with the alleys, pins or balls, with the person setting up the pins, or in any unfair way seek to gain a victory, shall, on proof of the same, forfeit the game. If, after the game has begun, one side refuses or fails to continue playing, unless such game has been suspended or terminated by the umpire, it shall be declared forfeited. Any club failing to meet its engagement with a full team by 8:30 p.m., shall forfeit the game. The umpires shall announce the game at once and allow the team not at fault to roll the game to its averages and record.

POSTPONED GAMES.

A club desiring to postpone a game must notify the Board of Directors at least two days before such game is scheduled. Permission shall be granted only providing the opposing club is willing, and that said game be played within 10 days from the postponed game was scheduled.
